w/wince

This vehicle is required to serve as a multi purpose vehicle. The primary requirement is for wince-operated antenna construction. Other uses are; haul antenna hardware, pick up of communication equipment that is too bulky for disaster maintenance vehicles, and to serve as a back-up vehicle for emergency calls on failure of emergency power generators. This vehicle is under the direct control of the Chief, Mechanical Maintenance Section.

OCI is charged with the responsibility for certain special intelligence within the Agency. To fully discharge this responsibility, OCI maintains a CIA and IAC-wide special intelligence courier system. In addition, the Agency is required to provide this same support to the White House, the National Security Council and their related Offices. The couriers utilizing this vehicle carry special material to areas requiring special clearance for couriers and/or vehicle to enter. The extent and urgency of regular and special trips require immediate availability of a vehicle, thereby precluding the use of a general assignment vehicle or use of this vehicle by other personnel. Trips vary in time from 15 minutes to 3 hours and in mileage one to 15 miles. This vehicle is used 6 days a week and averages 12 trips per day with each trip averaging 35 minutes in time and 4 miles distance. A sedan, 4 door, was originally justified on a TVA approved 3 July 56. However, due to the requirement to handle bulky material, a station wagon was authorized on a revised TVA, 3 July 1956. This vehicle was budgeted for in 1957.
